Modern Way of Obtaining Pardons.

Michael Angelo McGinnis is the name of a Missouri convict, who says he can square the circle and will do it for a pardon. He contends that for the general solution of an equation containing literal co-efficients there lies a general logarithmic solution for its corresponding numerical equation.

This is an age of wonders. We have an 11-year old boy calmly telling Harvard professors more than they ever knew about the fourth dimension, and a Minnesota convict writing his way out of jail with a poem; a California baby taking a trip to heaven in a trance, and a boy with a tubercular leg promptly growing four inches of foot after falling at the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre in Quebec. Wisdom grows in the prattle of children and miracles crop out of faith until we are all in a whirl. But we confess that we're worried not a little by this convict in Missouri who so mixes the classic with the modern in his signature and who says he can square a circle that need squaring, and yet we are interested in McGinnis' proposition. Politely says he: "Pardon me, Governor, if I undertake to square a circle."

Let McGinnis square a circle—the one at Annapolis, if he will, for it is confusing even to the natives. But in the future let's require real tasks of progressive convicts. Let the next convict tell us what's in the hash or where we lost our collar button; why women's dresses button up the back or who got the money in the Indian land deal; whether we must war with Japan or how we may reduce the cost of living. Poetry is useful, to posterity and logarithms that square circles may thrill the world of science; but we would rather pardon some convict seer who can give us the straight tip or how to rejuvenate the storage eggs.—Baltimore Sun.

Missouri State Fair.

The Directors of the State Fair have contracted with the Wright Company of Dayton, Ohio, for Wright Brothers' aeroplane exhibitions every day during the State Fair, October 1 to 7. Wright Brothers were the first to demonstrate that successful air trips could be made with a heavier than air machine. The flights each day will not be merely a few hundred or a few thousand feet, straight away flights, but a flight will consist of circling the mile track, at least once during each day's exhibition. This will give all visitors at the Fair, an opportunity of seeing a machine flying at close range. Mr. Brookins, operating a Wright machine, at Indianapolis, Indiana, during the second week in June, broke the world's record for height, reaching an altitude of over 4,300 feet.

Sensational flights are promised at State Fair, the first week in October.
